

Hon David Speirs MP

Minister for Environment and Water

Cabinet Secretary

Member for Black

David Speirs is South Australia's Minister for Environment and Water, also serving as the state government's Cabinet Secretary, roles which he commenced with the election of the Marshall Liberal Government in March 2018. He is currently the state's youngest minister and one of the youngest in South Australia's history.

He has been a Member of Parliament since his election at the age of 29 in 2014. First serving as Member for Bright, and then as Member for Black following the 2018 election. His seat is located in Adelaide's southern suburbs.

Prior to David's election to parliament he served as a local councillor on Marion Council between 2010 and 2014, also serving in the role of Deputy Mayor for 2011-2013.

David studied Law and Environmental Studies at the University of Adelaide, graduating in 2008 with Honours and winning the Dean's Prize for Alternative Dispute Resolution in 2007.

After graduating from university David worked in a range of roles in the South Australian Cabinet Office.

From 2010 to 2014 he served as a Director on the Duke of Edinburgh's Award national board and was named Young Community Leader of the Year in the 2012 South Australian Young Achiever Awards.

In his spare time David loves to immerse himself in South Australia's great outdoors. He is a regular gym goer, rock climber and paddle boarder, enjoys hiking in our state's parks and is a long time surf life saver.

A committed conservationist from his primary school days, David has worked to reinvigorate the relevance of the environment portfolio with reforms and initiatives including:

- re-establishing the state's National Parks and Wildlife Service and increasing the number of park rangers by more than 25%
- taking politics and game playing out of the management of the River Murray and securing additional water for South Australia and much needed investment in our precious Coorong
- leading Australia's most ambitious climate change program with a nation leading commitment to reduce carbon emissions by 50% (on 2005 levels) by 2030
- ensuring South Australia continues to lead the nation in waste management with the country's first single use plastics ban
- creating Glenthorne National Park, a new metropolitan national park in Adelaide's southern suburbs
- opening the state's reservoirs for recreation
- establishing Green Adelaide, a new body charged with the bold greening of metropolitan Adelaide.
